Queensland has no shortage of threatened species with close to 800 listed under State legislation and over 400 scheduled under Commonwealth legislation. In recent years there have been many changes to Queensland's natural landscapes coupled with amendments to the legislative framework that aims to protect threatened species. How will these changes affect threatened species and does it matter? The EIANZ is hosting a one day event on the subject of threatened species to discuss:

- changes to laws affecting threatened species;
- practical examples of threatened species assessment and management;
- threatened species habitat mapping by statutory agencies; and
- to consider whether efforts to protect threatened species are worth the expense.
