Advancing sustainability in business activities, projects and organisations requires more than technical skills. Practitioners need to help project leaders identify their own sustainability priorities and organise solutions with their stakeholders.

This presentation will introduce practical tools to assist you with exploring issues and guiding others in managing them. Our presenter will also outline how to customise communication of priorities to leverage support for sustainability endeavours.

Our presenter, Julia Callaghan has fifteen years' experience of working with organisations on environmental sustainability issues, particularly corporate responsibilities and regional prosperity. She has brokered many partnerships to further sustainability processes in and amongst public, private, industry, non-for-profit, research and education organisations. Currently, Julia teaches business subjects at Queensland University of Technology while researching business processes. She is also starting a consulting and facilitation service called Preternatural.

Speaker:

Julia Callaghan – Sustainability Practitioner, QUT; Director and Principal Consultant
